Remember when Intel disclosed their plans to introduce quad cores for laptops? Well it seems that company such as Lenovo is already adopting the technology for their laptops. In fact, Lenovo has already push their quad core laptops into the market, whereby the ThinkPad T410 is the latest addition for the market. Generally, the ThinkPad T410 can be outfitted with several types of Intel processors, namely the Core i5 T410 processor from Intel. On the other hand, the ThinkPad T410 does come with DisplayPort instead of DVI.

We'll take a look at the brand new Lenovo ThinkPad T410:
